Do it With Excellence the Tyson Way

The email Explosion

Our Love Affair with email

Why do we love email?

- It's easy to create
- It's easy to send
- It's easy to share information
- It's easy to use as a filing system for records of conversations
- It's easy to access almost anyone
- It's easy to attach more information to an email
- Did I mention it's easy...

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

Think before you type

Moderation is the key...

- Its ease drives unnecessary emails
- It may not be the best medium for communication
- Your words can often be assigned an unintended meaning
- It can be forwarded to unintended parties

Excellence Insight #1

Before you click  ask yourself... Is email the best, most effective means to communicate in this situation?

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

Think before you type

- Assume your e mails and text messages will be reviewed and produced in internal investigations, government inquiries or lawsuits filed against the company.
- Emails and texts sent through Tyson servers or on Tyson phones are retrievable.
 - Even if moved out of your inbox and into folders
 - Even if “double deleted” – i.e., deleted from your inbox and then deleted from “deleted items”

Kim: We are getting sued!

Kristin: I know; I am reading the lawsuit

Kim: What are they saying in a nutshell

Kristin: That we illegally downloading their stuff;
used false information and customer id/pw to get it

Kim: Well, that's true; wonder who on the inside told

Kirstin: I think they caught us. . . Got the bryan ip address

Excellence Insight #2

Call the Legal Department before sending Emails or Texts about Disputes, Lawsuits or Government Enforcement actions?

The Joke is on You. (Goldman Sachs)

To: Girlfriend
From: Fabrice
Subject: Today

“I have to work late tonight. Another long day of selling toxic assets to orphans and widows. These poor little sub-prime borrowers will not last so long.”

Excellence Insight #3
Don't joke in emails or texts.

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

The apologetic email

To: Tyson Employee
From: Tyson Manager
Subject: Yesterday

I've been really freaking out about what I said to you at the party last night. Too many drinks!! And that outfit you had on . . . Maybe you should wear that when I do your TEAMS review tomorrow. :) Anyway, I'm sorry and it's a good thing you didn't take me up on it . . . Let's just keep this between us, Ok?

Excellence Insight #4
Don't apologize through email.

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

To: Tyson Team Member A
From: Tyson Team Member B
Subject: Worker Injury at Cherokee

Did you read Today’s Flash Report about the injury in Cherokee? The Plant Manager knew that equipment was failing but was too cheap to fix it. It was just a matter of time until someone got hurt.

Excellence Insight #5

If you would not make a comment or accusation to another Team Member’s face and hang around, or if the subject is controversial you should not put it in email.

Emails about the competition

To: Tyson Team Member
From: Tyson Manager
Subject: Grower Pay

Hey – I'm looking at the request you sent for a grower pay raise. I see you said that Pilgrim's and Perdue have recently given raises. What are they trying to do? You need to call the live managers up over there and tell them to quit raising their pay and stealing our growers.

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

Emails about the competition

To: Tyson Team Member
From: Tyson Manager
Subject: JBS

Word on the street is that JBS and National are going to run Saturdays for the next couple of months. Can you call them up and find out if that's true? If so, you need to tell them to slow it down. That's too much production and we need to get them to show a little discipline.

Confidential Tyson Foods, Inc.

Emails about the competition

To: Tyson Team Member
From: Tyson Manager
Subject: chicken prices

We have entirely too much chicken on the market right now. You need to bring that up at the NCC meeting next week. See if you can get folks to cut back on production a little. If we all take a little bit of a haircut it'll be better on prices for the whole industry.
